1

Confirm your IRS-recognized credential is in good standing

To renew your AATPR credential, you must hold full IRS representation rights through one of the following designations: enrolled agent (EA); certified public accountant (CPA), licensed by a state board of accountancy, the District of Columbia or a U.S. territory; or attorney, licensed by a state court, the District of Columbia or a state bar designee.

Continuing education completed to maintain this designation fully satisfies NATP's CE requirements for your AATPR credential. No additional CE reporting to NATP is required.

Purchase your renewal

Once you've verified your IRS-recognized credential, purchase your renewal on the NATP website.
For 2026 renewals only, NATP is waiving renewal fees as a one-time benefit to credential holders.
If you hold more than one NATP credential, be sure to meet each credential's renewal requirements and submit a separate renewal for each.

3

Complete the online credential renewal form

To complete the process, submit the online credential renewal form by Dec. 31. You'll receive a link to the form in your renewal purchase confirmation email.

The renewal form will ask you to confirm that your IRS-recognized credential is in good standing and reaffirm your commitment to NATP's Code of Ethics, Standards of Professional Conduct and proper use of credential marks.

Upon successful renewal, you will receive a new digital badge and certificate via email.
